Introduction

This course will embark on a fascinating exploration of the rich tapestry of Arabic storytelling, delving into the depths of novels that have shaped and reflected the cultural, social, and historical landscape of the Arab world.

Arabic literature boasts a legacy spanning centuries, with novels serving as powerful vessels that capture the complexities of human experience, identity, and society. From classic masterpieces to contemporary works, each novel offers unique insights into the multifaceted dimensions of Arab life, tradition, and modernity.

This course delves into two integral facets of Arabic literature: the immersive exploration of influential Arabic novels and the discerning analysis of literary criticism. Our aim is to foster a deep understanding of the cultural, social, and artistic dimensions that shape the diverse narratives within Arabic literature.

Course Outcomes

CO1	Familiarise with the Arabic novels. Analyse and interpret literary elements within Arabic novels.
CO2	Understand the social life of different region. Gain insights into the social, cultural, and historical aspects of different regions through the lens of Arabic novels.
CO3	Learn the writing style of Arabic novels. Examine the writing styles employed by Arabic novelists.
CO4	Develop the ability to analyse and appreciate the artistic techniques used in Arabic novelistic expression.

Introduction

The course Journalistic Arabic is designed to introduce students to the language, style, and techniques used in Arabic media and journalism. It focuses on developing the ability to read, understand, analyze, and produce journalistic texts in clear and effective Modern Standard Arabic.

In today's rapidly evolving media landscape, proficiency in journalistic language is essential for engaging with newspapers, magazines, digital platforms, and broadcast media across the Arab world. This course familiarizes students with the distinctive features of journalistic Arabic, including brevity, clarity, objectivity, and audience awareness.

Students will explore a variety of journalistic genres such as news reports, editorials, feature articles, interviews, and headlines. Through guided reading and writing exercises, they will learn how to structure information, report events accurately, and employ appropriate vocabulary and stylistic conventions specific to media discourse.

The course also aims to enhance critical thinking by encouraging students to analyze media texts, evaluate sources, and understand the social, cultural, and political contexts in which journalism operates. By the end of the course, students will be equipped with practical language skills and foundational knowledge necessary for academic study, media-related careers, or further specialization in Arabic communication fields.

Introduction

Throughout this semester, this course will embark on a journey through the vibrant and diverse landscape of contemporary Arabic verse, exploring its rich tapestry of themes, styles, and voices. This course is designed to introduce undergraduate students to the multifaceted world of Arabic poetry, offering insights into its historical context, literary innovations, and cultural significance.

Arabic poetry has a long and illustrious tradition, and serving as a cornerstone of Arab culture and identity. The modern era has witnessed a dynamic evolution in poetic expression, as poets grapple with the complexities of a rapidly changing world. From the colonial encounters of the 19th century to the upheavals of the Arab Spring and beyond, Arabic poetry has been both a mirror reflecting society and a catalyst for change.

Moreover, the students will examine the regional diversity of Arabic poetry, highlighting the distinct voices and perspectives that emerge from different countries and cultures across the Arab world. From the lyrical love poetry of AbulQasimshabi to the politically charged verses of Mahmoud Darwish, the students will encounter a kaleidoscope of voices that reflect the complexities of Arab identity and experience.

COURSE OUTCOME

CO 1	Assess the influences of modern poetry among the society.
CO 2	Realize the beauty of language & the moral values in the Arabic poems.
CO 3	Understand the literary creations, authors, trends, etc.
CO 4	Know the distinct features of modern poetry in Arabic.
CO5	Sensitize the aesthetic, cultural and social aspects of literature.

Introduction

The course Journalistic Arabic offers students a comprehensive foundation in the language and practices of Arabic journalism, with an emphasis on real-world communication. It aims to bridge the gap between theoretical knowledge of Arabic and its practical use in media contexts, enabling students to engage confidently with contemporary Arab news discourse.

This course introduces the linguistic features and stylistic norms that characterize journalistic writing, such as precision, conciseness, and neutrality. Students will become familiar with commonly used media vocabulary, expressions, and structures that appear in print, digital, and broadcast journalism.

Through the study of authentic materials drawn from newspapers, online news portals, and televised reports, students will gain insight into how information is presented and framed for different audiences. They will also practice essential journalistic skills, including summarizing news, writing reports, crafting headlines, and translating media texts.

In addition, the course encourages awareness of ethical standards in journalism and the role of media in shaping public opinion. By the end of the course, students will have developed both linguistic competence and analytical skills, preparing them for further study or professional engagement in Arabic media and communication fields.
